

Draco on a Mission

by karelia

The Dark Lord sent Draco on a mission.

Draco on a Mission

Chapter 1 of 1

The Dark Lord sent Draco on a mission.

Disclaimer: Not mine.

A/N: This was written by Little Man, who is too young to have his own membership here. As he gifted me this drabble and asked me to post it on here as long as it is credited to him, I can do nothing but oblige. Any reviews will be forwarded to him.

Draco Malfoy wiped his face with a towel. Why did he send me here? Why? he thought.

The Dark Lord had sent him to guard a pyramid in the middle of Egypt with nothing but a banana and a goblet which refilled itself. He had been here for three weeks and had so far run into a crocodile while in the River Nile, had a bird swoop down and peck him non-stop, and nearly got shot while hunting for food. Though he had gotten stronger physically, he was slowly losing his mind.

Every night, he dreamt that the Dark Lord might not forgive him for not killing Dumbledore and face worse punishment than he could possibly imagine. He hoped to stay here in Egypt rather than return to the snakeface.