Snookums

Chapter 1 of 1

Hermione/Severus. It wasn't the first time they'd discussed Harry and Ginny's nauseating nickname habit... 2x100 words, for grangersnape100's "Nicknames" challenge.

"Sweetie, I just don't think—" began Harry over the pot-roast.

Ginny gave him an ever-so-patient smile, as though she were dealing with a four-year-old. "You know we've discussed this before, snookums."

Across the table, Hermione and Severus exchanged one of those amused glances that only the couple sharing it carefully understand the meaning of. They'd discussed Harry and Ginny, and their nauseating nickname habit, previously.

Now, passing the salt to Bill, Severus leant towards his young wife and whispered, his lips brushing her earlobe, "Are you ~~sur~~you don't have a secret desire to be called honey-cakes, mmm?"

Hermione turned, beneath his lips, then pulled back slightly and raised her eyebrows. "Are you ~~ask~~asking to be slapped, Professor Snape?"

"That depends, Mrs Snape. Are you offering?"

Harry cleared his throat and Ginny fussed noisily with the potatoes.

The Snapes smiled and made polite listening-noises as Harry launched into an appropriately boring story about Quidditch regulations. Everyone else looked fascinated.

Which was why it was only Severus who heard Hermione murmur, with the shadow of a smirk, "Besides, when I can hear ~~my~~own name purred in that Voice of yours, why would I choose snookums in its place..."
