Drabble

Chapter 1 of 1

It was a dark and frosty night at Hogwarts. Deep in the shadows of a little travelled corridor, he waited for his intended victim. He had planned for years to escape from the confines of social acceptability and thrust himself into that forbidden place. He silently awaited his opportunity.

At last she crept by, returning late from the library. Her bushy hair crackled with static. He leapt out, intent on the parchment protruding from her bag. The psychopathic comma was about to interfere with her carefully formed subordinate phrases, when... Wham! with a splash of red ink, the beta struck.
