

Je Voudrais Dormir

by _Levicorpus_

The moonlight peeks in on our favorite pair. A relaxing snapshot.

Chapter 1 of 1

The moonlight peeks in on our favorite pair. A relaxing snapshot.

Je Voudrais Dormir

The moonlight shone in on a pair of lovers, blanketing their sweat-sticky skin with its warm light. Both of their faces spoke nothing of their forbidden love or the cares of the waking world. They were adrift on a sea of dreams, comforted distantly by each other's arms.

Severus awoke to see his young wife's face illuminated as she turned to face him and the open window. He pulled the sheet up over her shoulder and kissed her softly on the forehead. Once awake, all he wanted was to return to sleep and forget everything that prevented his love for Hermione from flourishing publicly. He shook off the thought and held her warm, curvaceous form closer to him as he tried to return to a place of peace.

Author's Note: Title and concept inspired by Jeanne Cherhal's lovely song "Je Voudrais Dormir" (I would like to sleep)