

Sodden Dreams Tabby

by Stefdarin

It's bedtime for Minerva. But what she expects is not what she gets.

Sodden Dreams Tabby

Chapter 1 of 1

It's bedtime for Minerva. But what she expects is not what she gets.

Note: Thanks to my lovely beta, Semptra!

Disclaimer: JKR, yeah, she owns it, but she would never like to see them this way. Pity.

---

Silently, a gray tabby slipped into the room and bounded up onto the bed. She purred softly in anticipation of the welcoming warmth waiting for her in the form of the white-bearded man, Albus Dumbledore, sleeping soundly in their haven.

Albus shifted in his sleep, causing the bed to erupt in giant waves like the open sea. Not expecting the sudden wavering, the cat began to lose her footing and extended her claws to remain on the bed. As she extended them, her nails punctured the bed, resulting in a resounding pop. Suddenly, a chasm opened in the bed, creating a tidal wave that cast both Albus and the animal over the side. Albus jolted awake to a flood of water, and a yowling, sopping tabby landed on top of him as they hit the floor.

Minerva quickly changed back into her, now sodden and disheveled, human form and glared at her husband. Gently, he cradled her drenched body and looked at her with a contrite face while blushing profusely.

"My sincerest apologies, my dear! Would it make things any better if I promise not to transfigure our bed into a water bed before I tell you next time?"

Fin