What is the truth about Aberforth's goat?

"Did you hear the rumours?"

"Yes, he does it with a goat! Can you believe it?"

"He kisses the goat and everything!"

"That's nothing. I have seen him... having sex with it."

"Ewww, that's just gross!"

"Tell me about it. But that whole family is weird. His brother Albus... what kind of man wears paisley robes and eats candy all day?"

"You know what kind of man does that."

"That I do."

Aberforth tried to block out the vicious gossip, but he couldn't. He sadly shook his head and looked around. "I really wish I could find a counter spell to that spell that is on you, dear, but I haven't been able to yet. Maybe one day."

It had been thirty years since his wife had been cursed. On a trip to Africa, an evil necromancer had cursed his wife so that everyone who saw her would only see a goat. Fortunately, he saw her as herself, but it made for some pretty awkward situations when others saw them kissing or engaged in other activities. It broke his heart because his wife was a beautiful witch. Maybe one day it would be broken.
