The fire crackled and bathed the room in a comforting aura.

Long fingers intertwined with smaller ones and were kissed softly.

Long legs intertwined with smaller ones and were nudged tenderly.

The rain outside went unnoticed by Hermione and Severus.

How could it not be?

The fire beckoned both hearts to rest, and the warmth welcomed them to a safe haven.

Home...

... it was made in their caring gazes...

... it was made in their trust that the fire would always be fueled by the other.

Home...

... it was their guilty pleasure.

... it was their constant pleasure.
