Chapter 1 of 1

What does Lucius do when he sees Severus kissing a Mudblood?

A/N Written for SW69.

Prompt: Lucius Malfoy sees Severus kissing a Mudblood. What does he do to show Severus that only Purebloods are worthy of his affections?

Lucius Malfoy strode across the room, his long, elegant hair flowing freely and his robes gliding across the floor. His eyes were fixated upon the figure standing before him, a look of repulsion held in check for now.

"What were you thinking, Severus? What do you mean to do if the Dark Lord finds out?"

"The Dark Lord knows my feelings for her, Lucius. He has agreed to spare her life."

"But you were kissing her. Do you know what Lily Evans' friends think of you? Do you know what that insufferable prat Potter says about you?"

"I know very well what they think of me. I do not care, Lucius. That witch has held my heart for so long."

"You know that she is betrothed to James Potter, do you not?"

"I do know that. He has been the bane of my existence since the first time I met him. And now he is going to have my Lily."

"Your Lily?" Lucius Malfoy asked angrily. "Mudbloods have no place in our society. They should not attend Hogwarts and they should not be given wands. And you would do well to remember that in the future."

After Severus left the estate in a huff, Lucius made his way to his office and slammed the door. He did not get angry often, but when he did, the whole household knew it.

A smile crept across his lips, and a plan began to formulate in his mind. He would show Severus Snape what it meant to love a Mudblood. Writing a letter on a piece of parchment, he sent it off to its recipient.

A few hours later, there was a knock upon the door, and he opened it up to see Peter Pettigrew standing before him.

"Mr. Pettigrew. Please come in. I have a very interesting proposition for you."
