Chapter 1 of 1

Neville is extremely angry at someone

Neville went into one of his greenhouses to finish unloading the latest shipment of monkshood. Donning a work apron and a pair of rough leather gloves, he started sorting the blue and purple plants. As he worked, he began to notice that something was off about the plants: they smelled odd, almost sickly. Upon closer inspection, he noted that the flowers were covered with some sort of liquid, and he wondered what it could possibly be.

Just as he took off one of his gloves to test the substance, it dawned on him. He suddenly knew what was on them and who did it.

'That damned Malfoy! I can't believe he did it! He urinated all over my precious plants,' Neville's screeching voice reverberated off the greenhouse walls.

While Neville continued his tirade to no one but his plants, Draco entered the room unseen and sneaked up behind Neville to clamp his pale hand over the man's mouth.

'Hush now, Longbottom. I told you that I would repay you for destroying my new leather jacket.'
