

The Office

by lady_rhian

What happens when a former headmaster challenges the current headmistress?

I

Chapter 1 of 1

What happens when a former headmaster challenges the current headmistress?

Disclaimer: It all belongs to JKR. I just play in the sandbox for fun.

A/N: Written for the "Dialogue Only" and "Hermione the Headmistress" challenges at the gs100.

"You can't just barge in here like this! I am Headmistress of this school!"

"A position I held before you were even--"

"Oh, you were headmistress?"

"Hermione."

"You don't even have a portrait!" ... "Are you honestly still sore about that?"

"I'm afraid I am quite sore."

"At least you can admit it."

"After twenty years of marriage I should sincerely hope I can communicate with you, woman."

"Severus, that's so sweet! Oh, don't smirk at me. You are still an abominable man --oh! An abominable, quite attractive -- Severus, not on the desk!"

"Phineas, get these portraits out of the Headmistress's office."

"Yes, Headmaster Snape."

"That smirk does not become you, Headmaster -- OH!"

"I like it when you call me Headmaster."

Note: my subconscious shamelessly snatched that last line from the Notorious B.I.G's "Big Poppa" -- he raps "I like it when you call me Big Poppa." For those who would rather not think about Severus rapping, feel free to scrub this off the brain.

