A follow up short piece to my previous "Good Night". This time it is mostly from Hermione's point of view in the morning. Our favorite couple in the Harry Potter fanfiction world : )

Good Morning

Chapter 1 of 1

A follow up short piece to my previous "Good Night". This time it is mostly from Hermione's point of view in the morning. Our favorite couple in the Harry Potter fanfiction world : )

"How could I believe them? I know you. I know you would never hurt me. You told me how much you care about me. You've shown me how much you love me. They tried to tell me that you were dangerous for me. But I know that you would only ever want to protect me. I trust you."

He stirs a bit with his eyes still closed. He breathes a heavy sigh as she continues.

"To others you are an unpleasant man, but my life without you would be just that. I want you there with me. We don't need anybody except for the two of us. As long as I know that you're still mine and on my side, I will always be right there beside you."

She takes her hand and gently brushes aside his hair that is covering his face, and she folds her hand over his as she says, "I love you."

His eyes flutter a bit, uneasy by the light through the window. As he sees her next to him and feels her hand covering his, he says, "I love you too. It is moments like this with the little things."

She kisses him good morning.
