Deliverance

Chapter 1 of 1

Deliverance

Beyond the dark corridors

Where night's shadow whispers

And the sleeping are shrouded in dreams

I lay a sighing kiss on his furrowed brow

As he gathers me to his heart beat

And moans aloud

A strangled cry falls from his lips

And shatters at my weary feet.

He unfolds like a book

Pages scattering in the wind.

Murmured thoughts,

Faded dreams and unleashed fears

Writhe,

And settle within my veins.

I gaze down at smoothness unblemished

As white as snow.

He grips me tightly with trembling hand

And leads me in a mad dance

Where we melt,

Entwined.

He cries his tears

And rests his head upon my breast

As I bleed his soul

Across the page.
