

Moments

by EsS

Growing up Draco Malfoy never experienced a perfect moment, he never spoke of his feelings, and he never loved until now.

Moments

Chapter 1 of 1

Growing up Draco Malfoy never experienced a perfect moment, he never spoke of his feelings, and he never loved until now.

Disclaimer: I solemnly swear that I do not own Harry Potter and/or any other characters used in this fic. They are all property of J.K. Rowling.

Moments

Growing up, Draco Malfoy never experienced a perfect moment, he never spoke of his feelings, and he never loved. He grew up with a father who saw having emotions as weak and a mother who never said that she loved him even though he knew she did.

When Draco Malfoy and Harry Potter came together, Draco no longer saw having emotions as a sign of weakness, but he still never told Harry he loved him even though they both knew he did. But at night there were those moments, those perfect moments when Harry would drift off to sleep after they made passionate love in their home of Grimmauld Place, the moment when Draco would bury his nose into the crook of Harry's neck and inhale his scent. He would drape his arm around Harry's sleeping body and hold him close. It was in those moments that Draco would whisper soft I love you into Harry's ear. When he would then close his eyes and drift off to sleep himself. During the day, Draco Malfoy never told his lover how he felt and always wondered how Harry knew he loved him, why Harry stayed with him when he never spoke words of love. While Draco closed his eyes and fell asleep, he never saw Harry's eyes flutter open and never heard his murmur of 'I love you too'. Without words they both could agree that that was their perfect moment.

Fin