

Carbon Dating

by Ladymage Samiko

Hermione's passing out presents at the Christmas party. What does Severus receive?

Carbon Dating

Chapter 1 of 1

Hermione's passing out presents at the Christmas party. What does Severus receive?

Snape, ever-so-slightly jealous, watched Hermione bounce from friend to friend, brilliantly happy while passing out gifts.

She eventually handed him an enormous something-or-other. "Shall we see what Santa brought ~~you~~?" she asked saucily.

"A lump of coal, no doubt."

"Possibly." She near-twinkled, whirling away again. A weight landed surreptitiously in his pocket. Eyebrow quirked, he fished out a plain, tiny box.

A broad gold band, diamond embedded in its centre. A note.

Because if I waited on you, I'd be picking white robes at 90.

Severus slipped the ring on and draped his hand ever-so-casually—and prominently—over the mantelpiece.

- - - - -

AN: This is what I _meant_ to write when 'In His Own Corner' popped out. I like to think of it as a possible omake for my 'Events' universe. The title may be blamed on chronic ancient history geekiness. ^ _ ^