She mesmerized him...

Thanks to Janus for her beta job.

They sat across the room from one another in Florean Fortescue's ice cream parlor. His dark eyes watched her carefully as she ate the frosty treat before her. She alternated between long licks of ice cream and small little nibbles. Once in a while her tongue would dart out to sweep across her lips and catch any errant drips.

He had always admired her fiery side, her impulsiveness, and how she stopped at nothing to get what she wanted. But the way that she ate ice cream fascinated him. She treated it as something to be relished, something to be savored. The way she closed her eyes, it was as if she was in pure ecstasy.

Until she entered the shop, he had been eating his own ice cream with fervor, but once his eyes fell upon her eating her own concoction, his was all but forgotten. She mesmerized him. He had fallen under her spell. He didn't know anything until he felt something cold and wet fall upon his hand, and the spell was broken. His own ice cream had melted in its cone while he watched her.

Right then he knew that someday he, Rodolphus Lestrange, would ask Bellatrix Black to marry him.

Prompt from Janus: 8. Rodolphus and Bella enjoy ice cream.
