

Occlumency Lesson with Hermione

by kyriaofdelphi

Hermione is helping Harry with Occlumency with somewhat disastrous results.

1

Chapter 1 of 1

Hermione is helping Harry with Occlumency with somewhat disastrous results.

Harry was having dreams again. Hermione knew he hadn't done well with the Occlumency lessons from Snape. She decided to try to help him herself with the aid of several texts on the subject, borrowed from Dumbledore. She wasn't prepared for the unforeseen outcome.

The lessons had started simply enough, but Hermione quickly realised that Harry was not focusing correctly. He should be concentrating on closing his thoughts off, not forcing his way back into the other person's mind. She hadn't shielded her thoughts from him and the look now on his face was evidence that he had seen the one thing she really hadn't wanted anyone to know about.

Harry was so dumbfounded that he blurted out what he had seen. "You.. you... you got engaged to Krum over Christmas hols? How could you do that, Hermione?"

Unfortunately, everyone in the common room had heard him, including Ron and Ginny. Ron got furious and ran up to the boys' dormitory. Ginny Weasley simply grinned and made applauding motions behind Harry's back.

Hermione sighed and went back to trying to get Harry to focus correctly.

Beawasley2 left the prompt: Hermione tries to help Harry with his Occlumency, but Harry sees something he shouldn't and blurts it out. Now Ron knows. Only he's not the only one, so does (?).

What ensues?