Chapter 1 of 1

A case of mistaken identity changes the lives of one couple forever.

Her plan was working perfectly. She had gathered what was needed, and she had ensured that her nemesis was out of the house. It wouldn't take too much to convince him that she was his wife. After all, she had seen them enough together to imitate her, and she had waited for this day for so very long.

She took the required potion and used the Floo network to go to their house. He was delighted to see her and was more than willing to make good use of their unexpected time together with an afternoon tryst. Keeping the time under an hour, she used the excuse that she needed to get back to Hogwarts to grade her papers.

A month later, she knew that her plan had worked. She was carrying his baby. She knew that it was going to be a slap in the face to his wife since she hadn't been able to conceive and he really wanted children. Maybe this would finally be the thing that convinced him that she was the witch he should be with. She could give him what he wanted – lots of beautiful children.

Several months later, with a huge smirk on her face and the picture of their unborn child in her hand, she went back to their home – the home where her plan had come to fruition four months before.

His wife answered the door when she knocked and her brow furrowed in confusion. "Hi, Lavender. Can I help you?"

"Hi, Hermione. Actually, I'm here to help you, or rather your husband. I'm here to tell him that he's going to be a father. I'm carrying his baby."

The look on the faces of Ron and Hermione said it all.
