The wedding had been beautiful, the reception filled with celebrating friends and family.

Now it was time for the bride and groom to be alone. Their honeymoon was to begin the next day, so the newly-weds were spending their first night together at his flat in Sofia.

Hermione was pleasantly surprised to find Viktor had as many books strewn about the flat as she had at hers. There were even books on his bedside table.

As he was undoing the tiny buttons on her dress she realised that two of the books on that table were the same two books she had been reading at her flat.

"Vitya, why do you have the Kama Sutra and The Joys of Sex on that table?"

"They vere my textbooks, my loff. Karkaroff vas of opinion that any Durmstrang graduate must know how to satisfy their mate sexually. Vas a required course vith no testing. I think tonight vill be test enuff, don't you?" He began to nibble at the sensitive spot at the side of her neck.

Giggling shyly, Hermione continued unbuttoning his shirt before replying, "My parents gave me the same two books a month ago to study. I think tonight will be the perfect test, darling."

Very early the next morning, Viktor woke his bride with a kiss, asking, "Vas test vorthy of passing grade?"

Sleepily, she answered him, "Hmmm, I am not sure. Maybe you'd better take the test over again, Vitya."

He smiled at her teasing, and answered, "I vill take test as many times as is necessary to achieve Outstanding grade."

"Oh, you passed Outstanding the first test. This time you have to give me a grade."
