Severus buried his head beneath his arms and pressed his face into the sheets. He was tired... so tired... of doing everyone's will but his own, of serving the Dark, as well as the Light.

Love had been the catalyst of his downfall, while hate had brought him back from the precipice of madness: love for Lily Evans... hatred for the Dark Lord.

He wondered when the Final Battle was over and the victor, whomever it would be, stood triumphant, where would he be?

Who would he be?

As tears of anger and regret rolled down his cheeks, Severus realized that he had not known who he really was for a very long time... and that finally... he no longer cared.

A/N: Totally and unabashedly inspired by "Dear Agony" by Breaking Benjamin:

I have nothing left to give

I have found a perfect end

You were made to make it hurt

Disappear into the dirt

Carry me to Heaven's arms

Light the way and let me go

Take the time to take my breath

I will end where I began

And I will find the enemy within

'Cause I can feel it crawl beneath my skin

Dear agony, just let go of me

Suffer slowly, is this the way it's got to be, dear agony?

Suddenly the lights go out

Let forever drag me down

I will fight for one last breathe

I will fight until the end

And I will find the enemy within

'Cause I can feel it crawl beneath my skin

Dear agony, just let go of me

Suffer slowly, is this the way it's got to be, dear agony?

Don't bury me, faceless enemy

I'm so sorry, is this the way its got to be, dear agony?

Leave me alone, God, let me go

All blue and cold, black sky will burn

Love, pull me down, hate, lift me up

Just turn around, there's nothing left

Somewhere far beyond this world

I feel nothing anymore

Dear agony, just let go of me

Suffer slowly, is this the way it's got to be, dear agony?

Don't bury me, faceless enemy

I'm so sorry, is this the way its got to be, dear agony?

I feel nothing anymore...
