Did he really see what he thought he saw?

Disclaimer - I don't own the characters, I am just borrowing them.

A shaky, completely confused figure made its way through the Forbidden Forest. In past years he was known as Gilderoy Lockhart. But since nearly five years before, he didn't know who he was. He had been a ward of St. Mungo's since then but had broken out during a riot. He wandered aimlessly through the forest, not knowing who he was or where he was going.

All of the sudden he heard it.

"Help me, please!"

He looked around but could see no one. He took a few more steps.

"Please, sir, help me!"

He looked around and finally saw two squirrels standing on the ground in front of him. They were decidedly male, but they appeared not to have all of their parts. Thinking he was crazy, he ran out of the forest screaming and didn't stop until he reached the village of Hogsmeade where he was captured and taken back to St. Mungo's.

Meanwhile, the first squirrel turned and said to the other, "I guess we should go to Ron and apologize so we can get our nuts back."
