He was alone, but he wasn't afraid. He knew that somehow they were watching him. After all, they had to; he was the Traitor.

They thought they were going to punish him for what he did.

He stared at the goblet full of poison. He had sworn he wouldn't fight for his life; better to drink than to be kissed.

He smiled.

If only they knew.

Her soft, last words came back to him. "I will be there for you, I swear."

He was more than ready for his next grand adventure, to be with his Hermione for all eternity.
