

A Tense Moment with Fangirls

by Rose of the West

The most important part was cut off.

A Tense Moment

Chapter 1 of 1

The most important part was cut off.

"What an interesting story, Mr. Krum, especially the part about the pixies."

"Tank yu, Miss Lovegood."

"I have to ask, because many of our listeners want to know. What about your personal life?"

"Oh, I marry vitch who find me first--"

Viktor continued his story, but neither he nor Luna realized that the light had gone out and they were off the air.

The next morning, Victor walked down to the lobby of his hotel to discover that it was stuffed full of dozens of witches. "There he is! I found him first!" screamed one. The witch next to her fainted.

"No, it was me!"

"No, me!"

"Victor! Victor!"

"Vas is meaning of this?" he asked his companion as underthings started landing at his feet.

She shrugged. "I told you last night that you got cut off. It appears they have the impression that you will marry the witch who finds you first. Look, you have your choice."

"I want no choice." He squeezed her hand. "You find me long before they do."

She smiled brightly up at him. "Some day, we're going to work on your past tenses."

"As long as yu are teacher," he whispered, leaning down to kiss her.

Neither paid attention to the boos and sad sighs that surrounded them.

A/N: This weeks prompt is A garbled message on the Wizarding Wireless causes mass panic.