Disclaimer: Not only are the characters not mine but blame for this drabble firmly goes to linlawless and Dreamy_Dragon.

"And who do they think they are? Have they mistaken us for children?" Hermione was close to tears.

Severus stepped in her way. "Stop pacing. They are idiots, but you know that. Leave. I will join you shortly." He kissed her roughly, desperately. "I love you."

She trembled. "I'll start packing."

Hermione Apparated to Ushuaya and looked around. The unfamiliar hemisphere was about as far from England as possible while still holding on to civilisation, but at least the weather was similar.

It was a start – without coercion from some self-serving entities who claimed authority over others. She smiled.

A/N: Grateful thanks to linlawless and Dreamy_Dragon for beta reading. And special thanks to linlawless for showering me with potential titles, of which I chose the one I really, really liked.
