Chapter 1 of 1

They all had demons inside.

A/N: Just a short, little H Ginny fic. There is some angst here. Hinted violence, mental abuse, and psychological pain. You've been warned.

Disclaimer: JKR owns Harry Potter, not me. I'm making no money from this.

He reached into the darkness, grasping her hand. "Shh, it's all right."

She sniffled, moving closer to press herself into his body.

"I dreamt about him again," she whispered.

"I have nightmares still too," Harry replied. "But it's over, Ginny. He won't ever hurt us again."

Ginny pressed her face against his chest. "I hate this. I hate what he's done to us."

"But it'll never happen again," Harry promised. "He's gone for good, Ginny. I promise."

She hugged him tightly. "I love you, Harry."

He smiled sadly into the darkness. Ginny was one of the only people who truly understood him. They had both been possessed, and because of that, they knew each other better than anyone else.

"We'll battle our demons together, Ginny, just like I promised." He kissed her. "Try to get some sleep, love."

"Thank you, Harry."

Eventually the two fell back asleep, safe in each other's arms.
