"I wouldn't open that if I were you," Hermione warned Severus, smiling. "Fred and George were in charge of the party favors."

"Pity," Severus replied dryly.

"I've got one I made myself," Hermione offered nervously. "Care to share?"

Severus's gaze raked over her. "I would not be opposed."

"Great!" she said excited. Her heart raced as she offered him his half. Locking eyes, they pulled the cracker apart. Confetti rained down on them as the clock struck twelve. Feeling brave, she leaned forward and pressed her lips against his, making a small sound of surprise as he deepened their kiss.
