Bug of Luck

Chapter 1 of 1

This is a small reflection of ladybugs, the so-called bug of love, written for a school project and based loosely on the song "Luck Be A Lady" from Guys and Dolls.

Disclaimer: The phrase "Luck Be A Lady" and the song of the same name belongs to Frank Loesser, who wrote the song of the same name.

Luck be a lady,

Spotted supreme.

Luck be a lady,

Beautiful queen.

Ladybug luck,

Two wings flap above,

Ladybug luck,

Bug of love.

Luck with six legs,

Silent as the grave,

Luck with six legs,

Spots tell of age.

Luck everlasting,

Big white moons shine,

Luck everlasting,

Most beautiful eyes.

Luck song of soul,

Black darts a-spinning,

Luck song of soul,

Wings of winning.

The luck of lady,

Berry skin peppered ebony,

The luck of lady,

Flutter by, my lucky lady.

Improbable lady luck,

Hard shell protects,

Improbable lady luck,

The lady bug at best.

A/n- Major props to the Sundae crew from Guys and Dolls and to BG, who was my partner-in-crime on the project where I wrote this poem!
