

Flee, Flee, Flee; Stay, Stay, Stay

by from_n_to_h

a quick little abstract of my love life. The little bunny got in my head and wouldn't let me get any work done until I finished it.

Flee, Flee, Flee; Stay, Stay, Stay

Chapter 1 of 1

a quick little abstract of my love life. The little bunny got in my head and wouldn't let me get any work done until I finished it.

I once said forever,

I once said yes

To a diamond,

To children,

To a white picket fence.

I have learned that forever is not

Eternity.

Forever is apparently 39 months.

The diamond no longer shone with promise,

The children were not what I wanted,

And the white pickets became prison bars.

Flee, flee, flee.

Frustration found,

Rejections abound

Will I die alone?

Flee, flee, flee.

Run away to the Emerald City

Found solace in the arms of all.

I am beautiful,

I am wanted,

Stay, stay, stay.

I saw him and he saw me,

Passing each other and flirting

I thought him out of my reach,

Did not approach.

He followed but did not lead,

Months of a slow dance.

Then the pace quickens.

I must have him,

I must keep him,

But I must give up my validations.

Am I still beautiful?

Am I still wanted?

I am begging him,

Stay, stay, stay.

Time is ours,

We dance slowly,

We dance quickly,

I am beautiful,

I am wanted,

I am loved.

I cannot say forever,

But he has not asked,

Perhaps he never will.

Stay, stay, stay.