Contagion

Chapter 1 of 1

Drabble written for alexajohnson after a drabble prompt exchange on LiveJournal. She asked for a Draco/Hermione fic centered around the word 'flu'.

Hermione looked up from her book as her husband returned from his duelling practice.

"Where is our daughter?"

"Oh," he replied casually, almost dismissively, "I've sent her away to her uncle Potter for the day."

Hermione's eyes narrowed; she knew how little Harry's rapport with her husband had changed, so his studied nonchalance stoked her suspicions instead of assuaging them.

"With any luck," he continued in that same tone, "Potter might catch her ailment, instead of us."

Try as she might, Hermione couldn't suppress her amused snort. "For God's sake, Draco! She hasn't got dragon pox; it's only the flu!"
