

Blurring Lines

by Merlina Thalia

A poem about the increasing feelings that Draco Malfoy feels for Hermione Granger.

Chapter One

Chapter 1 of 1

A poem about the increasing feelings that Draco Malfoy feels for Hermione Granger.

A/N This is a poem about how Draco has started to feel about Hermione. A special thanks to my beta, ladyinthecloak. Poem copyright Jamie Ruby 2007 (Merlina Thalia)

Blurring Lines

Different blood flows through our veins

Yet we both bleed red

Different colors adorn our rooms

Prejudices that were inbred

I notice things I thought I knew

Have started to rearrange

Not sure exactly when it happened

When things started to change

The lines that I have known

Are beginning to blur

The feelings deep inside me

Have begun to stir

I'm not sure anymore

Even which way is up

As these feelings inside me
Continue to build up
There are so many things
That have been left unsaid
Things I was afraid to say
And I was cruel instead
I don't know if I will ever
Say what's on my mind
Or if I will be able to Leave old ideas behind
-- Jamie Ruby 5/01/2007