Challenge at GrangerSnape100: Deception.

"I suppose we're fooling ourselves," Hermione whispered in his ear. "We really have nothing in common."

Severus stroked her hair and sighed. "Impossible. The whole situation is impossible."

"We should stop now," she said as her lips grazed his cheek. "It would make sense."

"Very sensible," he replied as he ran his hand down her back. He held her close. "We are deceiving ourselves otherwise."

"Of course," she answered. Her hand was resting on his chest, just over his heart. "Then we should be sensible and stop this now."

His lips hovered over hers. "Not right this minute. Later, maybe."
