

Roses

by Raychcons

Snape wasn't brave enough to give it to her face-to-face.

Roses

Chapter 1 of 1

Snape wasn't brave enough to give it to her face-to-face.

As he turned away from her office, Hermione bet he thought she didn't notice his secret present. The fact that he felt he had to place it on her chair without letting her see was rather amusing, and yet such a Snape thing to do. As though he was worried about her reaction to the gift.

He didn't need to sneak into her office to place a bunch of roses on her chair, hidden with a charm. When she confronted him about it, he denied it venomously, telling her he had no such agenda.

Hermione just sighed happily and smiled.