

My Love

by Lalia

An original free form poem. The dispersed articles speak of my love to you.

My Love

Chapter 1 of 1

An original free form poem. The dispersed articles speak of my love to you.

That Love You Have For Me

The dispersed articles
Speaks of my love to you.
It enters my eyes,
And runs through my veins.
Those wonderful glances
You send to me
Only makes me shine
With the endless devotion to you.
When I hide behind the tresses
Of my hair, you tilt my face
Up gently, only to grace me with a
Passionate kiss that the word love alone
Cannot help to describe what
Emotion you have for me.
I twirl around in that new
Dress that you love so much.

You watch me as I twirl and join
In on that dance. We danced to the Music of our hearts.
You spun me too much that I got dizzy,
Which makes me see the world in a haze.
Which makes me wonder where you are.
Though, you find me.
I was there all the time.
You were right behind me, you tell me,
Smelling the fragrance of my hair.
In the morning,
You greet me with a kiss.
A shy and hesitant one that
Makes me chuckle and smile.
At noon,
You greet me with a kiss on the lips.
A quick one which makes me disappointed, but
Glad to know that you still love me.
At night,
You greet me with a kiss.
A passionate one.
A bold one,
That alone describes how much
I mean to you.
The dispersed articles
Speaks of my love to you.