Obsession

Chapter 1 of 1

Severus' consuming obsession with Hermione leads us to these disquieting 100 words.

Warning: This will probably offend those who have only the highest regard for our darling Severus.

"You, my beloved Hermione, are the most magnificent specimen of woman I have ever laid eyes upon!"

Severus mapped the contours of her face against the glass that divided them with adulating fingers.

"Pity you rejected my proposal," Severus mused disconsolately. "I would have treated you like a Queen, you know."

Severus pressed a yearning kiss to the glass. "Good night, my love. Pleasant dreams."

He paused momentarily at the door to cast one last admiring glance back at her. Candlelight flickered across lifeless, unseeing eyes. Bushy hair drifted idly in the preserving fluid.

"You are perfection indeed, my dear."

Author's Note: Intentions is one possible prequel to this drabble.
