I jumped on a Death Eater because I can--Voldemort said so!

Chapter 1 of 1

My response to Southern Witch's drabble challenge: Your Birthday Meaning in HP Land

"What on earth is going on here?"

Hermione looked around the room of black cloaked figures, the tallest one lying face down on the floor, another robed figure standing above him, having just leapt off its victim.

"Ah, Mom! I jumped on a Death Eater because I can--Voldemort said so!" Alexander indicated the figure sitting on the high-backed dining room chair.

Sasha lifted her snake mask, peering up at her mother sheepishly.

"You told your brother to jump on a Death Eater?" Hermione glared at her daughter before turning her glare on her husband on the floor.

"Severus Snape, I've asked you a hundred times not to let the kids rough-house with you when they are playing "Death Eaters". Your back will be out tomorrow."

Severus rolled over, pushed the hair out of his eyes and gave his wife his sexiest glance from under his lashes. He knew she couldn't stay angry with him for long. If he knew his wife (and he did), his back would be out for an entirely different reason tomorrow.
