"Macnair had known he was living on borrowed time."

Since an unexpected raid had saved Snape's life, Macnair had known he was living on borrowed time.

But he had lasted longer than everyone else, including Lucius.

He grinned wider, feeling Snape's knife on his throat.

"You have always been sentimental, Snivellus. Never got over the Granger chit, eh? Couldn't stopper death for her?"

There was no answer, but a vial was forced through his broken teeth.

"I have stoppered death. For you, Macnair. You will die over and over, a thousand times if I wish so."

The knife bit into his flesh while the hand tightened in his hair.
