The voices grew louder as Draco moved closer.

"... How did it sound, Ron?"

"I don't think he'll care how it sounds."

"Of course he'll care! A proposal is a big deal!"

"It was fine, but the wording won't matter. He loves you."

Harry closed his eyes and attempted to stop hyperventilating. "Okay, let me try again. Draco, I love you. We've been tog—no, that's terrible. Draco, will you—"

"Marry you?" the blond asked as he moved into the room, and Harry's breath froze in his chest.

"Draco..."

"Of course I will."

Ron snorted. "That was a tough sell."
