Disclaimer: Everything belongs to JKR. Don't sue.

A/N: Just something that came to me. My first attempt at a drabble, as well as Harry's POV.

Your eyes haunt me.

Of all the memories I have of you, none are as vivid as the last.

Look at me.

You loved her so much. In spite of everything, I wish she'd have loved you back. And yet, somehow, I know she did.

I wonder how differently things would have been had I been born your son. Sometimes I think you wondered that too. How hard it must have been watching me grow to be my father's son with her eyes shining from my face.

Years later, your eyes still haunt me.

Just as mine surely haunted you.
