Spilt Ink

Chapter 1 of 1

Hermione/Draco, 100 words. Hermione has some unexpected news for Draco...

The ink spread across the desk unwatched, unattended. It sank into the rich fibre of the parchment, it slid across the feathers of quills, and it dripped slowly over the edge of the mahogany onto the Persian rug below with a soft plup, plup, plup.

Hermione reached out a pale white hand and stood the little bottle back up again. She was so close, she was intoxicating, and she just stood there and looked at him with that warm amused glow in her bright, brown eyes.

Draco swallowed and stared at the pool of green across his desk.

"A ... baby?"
